

OMO IBADAN

The Life Guide

A real-life simulation of the city of rust roofs:
its people, markets, food, music and nightlife, plus the sign-up, log-in and sign-out screens of the app.

Contents

01 Welcome to Omo Ibadan	3
Five ideas shape every decision in the game:	3
02 The city behind the game	4
Landmarks and how they appear in the game	4
03 The bubbly life of Ibadan	6
Food: the centre of everything	6
The market, and the women who run it	6
Getting around	7
Campus life, faith and festivals	7
Nightlife	7
Language and manners	7
04 How the game plays	9
05 The city directory	10
06 Screens and flows	13
6.1 Welcome and intro	14
6.2 Sign up	15
6.3 Log in	16
6.4 Sign out	17
6.5 Rules and copy	17
07 Sound, music and rights	19
The intro song	19
The artist platform	19
08 Under the hood	21
Honest security status	21
Recommended next steps	21

How to read this guide

Sections 1 to 4 describe the world and the life in it. Section 5 is the city directory. Section 6 holds the screens: Welcome, Sign up, Log in and Sign out, drawn to match the app as built and extended with the improvements we recommend. Sections 7 and 8 cover sound, rights and the technology underneath.

01

Welcome to Omo Ibadan

Omo Ibadan means a child of Ibadan: someone who belongs here.

Omo Ibadan is a web game that lets you live a day, and then a whole life, in Ibadan. You arrive with a little money and a hungry stomach. You find a room, take a job, chase a degree, eat amala at Skye, ride an okada through the traffic, buy land in an estate, fall in love at a suya spot, dance until the DJ stops and, one day, fly out of Ibadan Airport and back again.

It is built for people who know the city and miss it, and for people who have never been and want to understand why Ibadan is spoken of with such affection. Everything in it is meant to feel like the real place: brown corrugated roofs as far as the eye can see, a market that never seems to end, the hum of a generator when NEPA takes light, and the constant, friendly noise of people who always have something to say.

Five ideas shape every decision in the game:

- Real life, simulated. You get hungry, tired, bored and lonely. Money, reputation and time all matter.
- A living city. One shared clock, one hour of real time for each game day. Markets open and close, clubs wake up after dark, NEPA goes out on a schedule everyone shares.
- People, not just places. Other players walk past you, chat, call you on the phone and talk live in voice rooms. Market women shout their prices.
- Pride of place. Real landmarks, real districts, real food, real language, drawn with affection and a sense of humour.
- Fair to artists. Music in the game belongs to the people who made it. Every track is credited and can be removed by its owner at any time.

The look of the game

A warm, modern and clean 3D city. The signature colour is Ibadan rust: the weathered brown of corrugated iron roofs. It runs through the interface, the roofs of the houses, the skyline from Bower's Tower and the artwork in this guide.

02

The city behind the game

Ibadan: capital of Oyo State, and a city of rust-brown roofs.

Ibadan is one of the largest cities in Nigeria and in West Africa by area, spread across a scatter of hills in south-western Nigeria and the capital of Oyo State. Its people are mostly Yoruba. The city grew from a war camp in the early nineteenth century into a hub of trade, learning and politics. Ask any visitor what they remember and they will tell you the same thing: the view from a hilltop, where the whole city lies below as a sea of rusted corrugated roofs.

That view is the heart of the look of Omo Ibadan. Climb Bower's Tower in the game and you see exactly this.

The game map at a glance: 90 by 90 units, nine roads each way, 64 blocks, gated estates and a walled campus.

Landmarks and how they appear in the game

Real landmark	What it is	In the game
Bower's Tower	A hilltop tower from the 1930s with a famous view over the city's roofs.	Climb to a viewing deck, spin the panorama and point a telescope at any landmark.
Cocoa House	A landmark skyscraper built in the 1960s on cocoa money.	An office tower: shifts, networking and a pitch to investors.
University of Ibadan	Nigeria's first university, set in a leafy walled campus.	A walled campus: you enter by the gate, and the faculties, library and Trenchard Hall appear.
UCH and Adeoyo hospitals	Teaching hospitals that serve the whole region.	Wards, check-ups, volunteering and nurse's aide shifts.

Real landmark	What it is	In the game
Mapo Hall	A colonial-era town hall on Mapo Hill.	Town meetings and a view over the old city.
Bodija, Dugbe, Sango markets	Huge, noisy foodstuff and cloth markets.	Very large market halls full of stalls, with market women calling for customers.
Agodi Gardens, Eleyele Lake	Green places to rest by the water.	Parks for a jog, a picnic or a paddle-boat ride.
Lekan Salami Stadium	Home of the city's football.	A match plays on the pitch: blue against yellow, all day.
Ibadan Airport	The city's gateway to Lagos, Abuja and beyond.	Book a ticket, board, fly, and fly home.

A note on facts

Descriptions of real places are written to give the flavour of the city. Dates, heights and distances in a game are simplified. Anything used for reference should be checked against a current, reliable source before it is published as fact.

03

The bubbly life of Ibadan

A day, from the first okada to the last suya of the night.

Ibadan is not a hurried city, but it is never quiet. The pace is a warm, loud, joking pace: greetings take their time, bargaining is a sport, and every conversation has room for a proverb. This is how a day goes, and how the game tries to capture it.

Time	In the city	In the game
5 to 7 am	Generators cough and cocks crow. Okada riders warm up. Bread sellers walk the streets. People greet: Ẹ káàárò.	Dawn light, bakeries and stalls waking, a keke boost at the motor park, the market opens at 6.
7 to 11 am	Traders set out tomatoes and pepper. Students rush to lectures. The market is at its loudest.	Market rush: jobs at Bodija pay 40 percent more. Lectures begin on campus.
Noon	Heat, danfo buses, long queues, mosque and church bells in turn.	Career fair at UI, Jumu'ah at the mosque. Amala for lunch.
3 to 7 pm	Football on the pitch and on every street. Cars crawl through Ring Road.	Match day at the stadium: everything is 50 percent more fun.
Evening	Suya smoke, owambe invitations, light fades. Ẹ káalẹ.	Evening events, the Owambe hall opens, windows begin to glow.
Night	Clubs wake up, NEPA takes light, generators roar, friends talk on verandas.	Clubs open: dance, drinks, spray money. Light goes out on a shared schedule.
Midnight on	The last suya, the last song, the long ride home.	Vigils at the Aladura church, late sessions in the lounges, the airport closed.

Food: the centre of everything

Ask an Ibadan person where to meet and the answer is often a food place. Amala (yam or cassava flour swallow), served with ewedu (jute leaf soup), gbegiri (bean soup) and a stew of assorted meat, is the city's signature meal. There is iyam (pounded yam) with efo riro, pepper soup for cold evenings, suya grilled over open coals, puff-puff and moi moi at every corner. Food is how people say welcome. In the game you can buy foodstuff at the market, order groceries, cook at the stove and sit down to eat at your own table, and your character lifts the bowl to eat.

The market, and the women who run it

The market is the loud, generous heart of Ibadan. It is a city inside the city: rows of stalls under bright umbrellas, tomatoes piled in pyramids, bags of rice and beans, goats, fabrics, spices, bowls of palm oil, and the market women who hold it all together. They call to you by name, or by a name they invent on the spot: Madam, come and see fine pepper. Oga, last price. My customer, how many? Bargaining is expected, and it is done with humour. In Omo Ibadan the markets are very large, each with dozens of stalls and a crowd of market women in wrapper and gele, each with her own goods and her own sales talk, outside on the street and inside the hall.

- Bodija Market: the biggest hall in the game, with a dozen women selling pepper, fish, yam, palm oil, cloth and seasoning.
- Dugbe Market: cloth and provisions, and the best place for ankara and aso-oke.
- Sango Market: foodstuff and a lively trading floor.

Getting around

Nobody walks everywhere. The okada (motorbike taxi) is the fastest and cheapest way through traffic, the keke (three-wheeler) is the everyday ride, and the Micra is the private option. In the game cars, keke and okada move slowly through the streets, stop for anyone on foot, wait at the traffic lights on every junction, and honk when they come close. Cab parks have rows of waiting taxis: tap one, choose a destination, pay the fare and ride. You can also buy your own keke, Corolla, Lexus or G-Wagon.

Campus life, faith and festivals

Campus. Ibadan is a university town. Students crowd the lecture halls and the library, queue for jollof and argue about football at the hostel gate. In the game the University of Ibadan is a gated, walled campus: you come in through the gate, and only then do the faculties of Science, Arts and Law, Kenneth Dike Library and Trenchard Hall appear.

Faith. Mosques and churches stand side by side, and neighbours of different faiths celebrate each other's festivals. The Central Mosque, St. David's Cathedral, the Aladura prayer house, the Pentecostal auditorium and the Methodist chapel all have services, choirs and, at night, vigils.

Owambe. The Yoruba party. Guests wear aso ebi (matching fabric), a live band plays, jollof and small chops come in endless trays, and aunties spray naira notes on dancers. It is the most joyful event in Nigerian social life and the game has a hall just for it.

NEPA. The electricity authority is a running joke and a running reality. When NEPA takes light, fans stop, the TV dies and generators start up. The game schedules blackouts the same for everyone, and you can pay to fuel a generator.

Nightlife

Ibadan after dark is warm, loud and generous. DJs play afrobeats and amapiano, there is fuji at the palmwine joints, and the suya man never runs out of pepper. In the game five venues open late: the Afrobeat Lounge (dance floor, DJ, VIP tables), the Sky Bar and Lounge (cocktails over the city lights), the Owambe Garden and Dance Hall, the Palmwine Joint in Bere and the Suya Spot and Shisha Lounge. You pay a cover, buy a round, hit the dance floor and, if you are feeling grand, spray money for the crowd. All of it costs, so it is a real way to spend what you earn.

Language and manners

Say	Meaning	When
Ẹ káàárò / Ẹ káàsán / Ẹ káalẹ̀	Good morning / afternoon / evening	Every greeting, to anyone older: say it first.

Say	Meaning	When
Báwo ní? / Şé àlàáfíà ní?	How are you? / Is it peaceful?	The polite opening to every chat.
Ẹ şé	Thank you	After any kindness, large or small.
Pẹlẹ o	Sorry (for your trouble)	When someone is tired, hurt or unlucky.
How far? / Wetin dey?	Pidgin: How are you? / What's up?	Among friends, and everywhere.
Abeg / No wahala	Please / No problem	Daily.
Oga / Madam / Aunty	Respectful forms of address	In shops, markets and taxis.

04

How the game plays

Needs, money, land, love, wheels and wings.

System	How it works
Needs	Hunger, energy, fun and social slowly fall. When one runs low you feel it. Eating, sleeping, parties and good company refill them.
Money and reputation	Jobs pay naira and build reputation. Reputation lifts you up the title ladder from Jagun toward Olubadan, and unlocks better jobs.
The shared clock	One game day lasts one real hour, and everyone sees the same time. Markets open and close, clubs open after 8 pm, nights are dark.
Jobs	Dozens of paid roles: market stalls, tutoring, nursing aide, bank teller, concierge, baggage handler, conductor. A searchable jobs board lives on your phone and on any computer.
Land and houses	Buy a plot in one of 22 districts, build a bungalow, duplex or mansion, collect rent, decorate the rooms, host friends. 87 plots in all.
Gated estates	Bodija Estate, Jericho GRA, Oluyole Estate and Iyaganku Heights have walls and boom gates. Residents walk in. Everyone else buys a 30-minute visitor pass from the guard.
Home life	Buy foodstuff, order groceries, cook at the stove, eat at the table. Sleep in your own bed. Power cuts matter: pay for the generator or sit in the dark.
Wheels	Hire an okada, keke or Micra, or buy your own car. Cab parks, fares by distance, a horn on the H key. Traffic is polite: it stops for people on foot and waits at red lights.
Love	Talk to the women of Ibadan, compliment them, buy a drink or a gift, ask them out, and take them on dates. Friends can be called on the phone.
The airport	Book a ticket to Lagos, Abuja, Port Harcourt, Accra, Dubai or London, board at the airport, enjoy the cabin window and fly home.
Events	Market rush, career fair, match day, Jumu'ah, Owambe, vigils: each opens a bonus at a particular place.
Politics	A governor election every twenty minutes. Win, and your policy (free keke, cheap food or higher wages) applies to every player.
People	Chat, wave, dance, join a voice room, call a friend. Talk to anyone near you with one tap.

05

The city directory

49 places, 87 house plots in 22 districts.

Every place has an outside, an inside you can enter and walk around, things to do, and opening hours on the shared clock. Hours are game time. Places marked 24 hours never close.

Nightlife

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Afrobeat Lounge	Jericho Nights	8pm to 4am	Live DJ, talking drums and a floor that never empties.
Sky Bar & Lounge	Jericho Nights	6pm to 3am	Cocktails, city lights and slow afrosoul.
Owambe Garden & Dance Hall	Akobo	2pm to 2am	Aso ebi, jollof, a live band and money-spraying aunties.
Palmwine Joint, Bere	Bere	4pm to 2am	Fresh palmwine, pepper soup and old-school fuji.
Suya Spot & Shisha Lounge	Iyaganku	5pm to 3am	Smoky suya, cold drinks and loud football talk.

Air travel

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Ibadan Airport	Samonda	5am to 11pm	Book a ticket, board a plane, see the world and fly home.

Food

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Amala Skye	Bodija	7am to 10pm	Gbegiri, ewedu and a long queue. Worth it.
Premier Hotel	Jericho	24 hours	Rooftop dinners and a very polite front desk.
Mama Put, Challenge	Challenge	8am to 11pm	Iyan, efo riro and pepper soup at street prices.

Shopping

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Bodija Market	Bodija	6am to 8pm	Foodstuff, fabric and fierce bargaining.
Dugbe Market	Dugbe	6am to 8pm	Old city trade. Everything is available if you ask loudly.
Ventura Mall	Jericho	9am to 10pm	Shops, cinema and an air-conditioned food court.
Sango Market	Sango	6am to 7pm	Yams, cloth, pepper and every kind of bargain.

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Mokola Plaza	Mokola	9am to 10pm	Boutiques, a cinema and a food court.

Work

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Cocoa House	Dugbe	8am to 6pm	Ibadan's first skyscraper. Offices, deals and ambition.
Oyo State Secretariat Tower	Agodi	8am to 5pm	Ministries, memos and endless queues.
Ibadan Trust Bank Tower	Dugbe	8am to 4pm	Glass, marble and a very serious vault.
Cathay Heights	Ring Road	7am to 10pm	Ibadan's newest luxury high-rise, all glass.
Ibadan Central Bank Tower	Odo-Ona	8am to 4pm	Thirty floors of marble, money and nervous interns.

Learning

Place	District	Hours	What it is
University of Ibadan	UI	7am to 9pm	Nigeria's first university. Lectures, libraries and late-night reading.
Kenneth Dike Library	UI Campus	8am to 10pm	Ibadan's great reading room. Silence, please.
Faculty of Science	UI Campus	8am to 6pm	Labs, lecture rooms and long practicals.
Faculty of Law	UI Campus	8am to 6pm	Moot court and very serious wigs.
The Polytechnic, Ibadan	Sapati	8am to 6pm	Engineering workshops and a famously lively campus.

Culture

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Mapo Hall	Mapo	8am to 6pm	The hilltop city hall with the best view of Ibadan's rooftops.
Cultural Centre Mokola	Mokola	9am to 8pm	Drumming, dance and the stories of old Ibadan.
Bower's Tower	Dugbe	8am to 7pm	Climb it and see the whole city of rusted roofs.
Faculty of Arts	UI Campus	9am to 7pm	Drama, Yoruba literature and loud rehearsals.
Trenchard Hall	UI Campus	9am to 9pm	The Great Hall: convocations, concerts and debates.

Fun

Place	District	Hours	What it is
UI Zoo	UI	8am to 6pm	Peacocks, monkeys and a very smug tortoise.
Agodi Gardens	Agodi	6am to 8pm	Lakes, shade trees and a little peace.
Trans-Amusement Park	Agodi	10am to 11pm	Ferris wheel, arcade and screaming friends.
Lekan Salami Stadium	Adamasingba	9am to 11pm	Match day. Shooting Stars and very loud fans.

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Ibadan Golf Club	Oluyole	6am to 7pm	Manicured greens, cold drinks and quiet deals.
Eleyele Lake Park	Eleyele	6am to 7pm	Still water, paddle boats and a cool breeze.
Oluyole Hotel	Iyaganku	24 hours	Chandeliers, a pool and a very polite doorman.

Health

Place	District	Hours	What it is
UCH	Agbowo	24 hours	University College Hospital. Patch yourself up.
Adeoyo Teaching Hospital	Yemetu	24 hours	Wards, clinics and the busiest corridor in town.

Faith

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Central Mosque	Dugbe	24 hours	A quiet place to pause between prayers.
St. David's Cathedral	Kudeti	6am to 9pm	Old stone, tall tower, long hymns.
Aladura Prayer House	Eleyele	24 hours	White garments, drums and all-night vigils.
Divine Grace Assembly	Challenge	6am to 10pm	A big Pentecostal auditorium with a loud choir.
Oke-Bola Methodist Church	Oke-Bola	6am to 8pm	Hymns, a pipe organ and very punctual ushers.
Akobo Faith Chapel	Akobo	6am to 9pm	A lively neighbourhood church with a drum-heavy choir.
Oje Central Mosque	Oje	24 hours	A grand domed mosque in the old city.

Government

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Government House	Iyaganku	8am to 5pm	Where the state is run. Earn your seat at the table.
Olubadan's Palace, Oja'ba	Oja'ba	9am to 5pm	Chiefs in full regalia and centuries of tradition.

Transport

Place	District	Hours	What it is
Ring Road Motor Park	Challenge	5am to 11pm	Danfo, keke and okada. Everyone passes through here.
Iwo Road Garage	Iwo Road	5am to 11pm	Interstate buses, touts and the loudest horns in Oyo.

06

Screens and flows

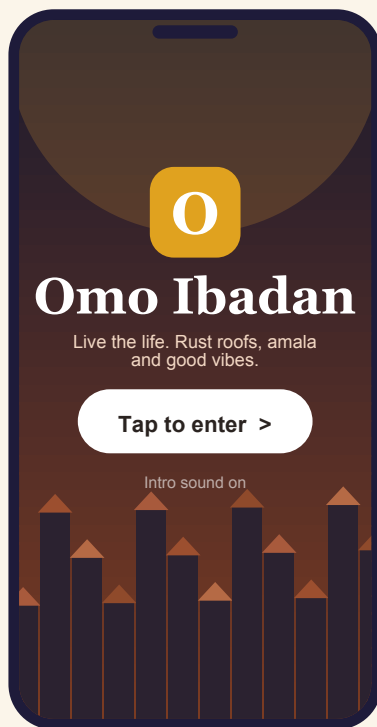

Welcome, Sign up, Log in, Sign out: as built, and enhanced.

Every player starts at the same front door. The screens below match the visual language of the app: Ibadan rust, deep indigo, warm gold, large rounded buttons, one clear action per screen, and the rust-roofed skyline always in view. Each screen is shown first as it exists today, followed by the enhancements we recommend.

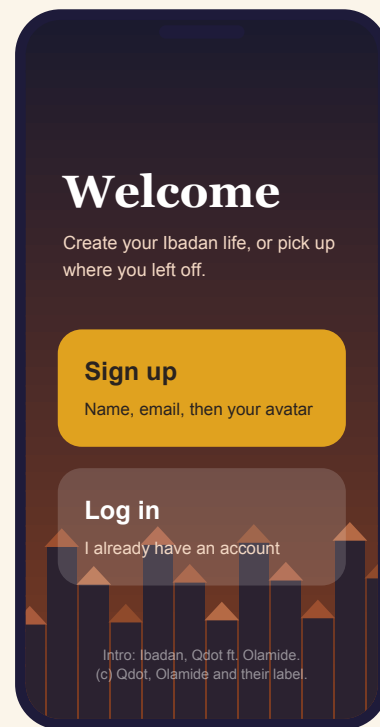

The account journey. Sign up and Log in both end in the city; Sign out saves, clears the device and returns to the Welcome screen.

6.1 Welcome and intro

1. Intro

2. Choose

Intro. The first thing a player sees is the skyline of rust roofs and the game name. Tapping Tap to enter starts the intro (browsers only allow sound after a tap): an 18-second clip of the chorus that repeats on the sign-in screens and keeps repeating in the city until the player stops it, with the artist credit showing. It moves to the choice screen. A small mute button sits top right. The song title, artist and copyright owner are shown in small type at the bottom, always.

Choose. Two large actions: Sign up (gold, the main path) and Log in (frosted glass). No other clutter.

6.2 Sign up

< Back STEP 1 OF 2

Create account

Just a name and an email to start.

NAME IN THE GAME

Tunde OK

EMAIL

tunde@mail.com OK

☐ I agree to the house rules

Continue to avatar >

Already have an account? Log in

3. Account

STEP 2 OF 2

Design your avatar

Skin

Outfit

T-shirt Agbada Ankara Senator

Hair & headwear

Sign up & enter Ibadan

4. Avatar

Account (step 1). Name in the game (2 to 16 characters, shown above your head) and email. The email must be valid and can belong to only one player; if it is already used the player sees That email is already registered. Nothing else is asked. No password is collected in this version.

Avatar (step 2). The character designer: body type, skin tones that match Nigerian complexions, outfits (everyday, agbada, ankara, senator, buba, gele and more), hair and headwear. The designer offers everyday and Nigerian outfits and head ties such as gele and fila. A walk preview lets the player see their character move. The button reads Sign up and enter Ibadan and creates the account, saves the avatar and drops the player into the city.

Enhancements recommended

A visible two-step progress bar (shown above). Live validation ticks beside each field. A one-line house-rules and privacy note with a required tick-box. Autofocus on the name field and the right mobile keyboard for email. A one-time email code to verify the address before the account is final (see Section 8). An Edit email link before the code is sent.

6.3 Log in

A mobile app login screen with a dark blue header containing a '< Back' button. The title 'Log in' is in large white font, followed by the instruction 'Use your email and signup name.' in smaller white text. Below this are two white input fields: 'EMAIL' with the value 'tunde@mail.com' and 'NAME IN THE GAME' with the value 'Tunde'. A large yellow 'Log in' button is centered below the fields. At the bottom, there is a link 'New here? Sign up' in yellow text.

5. Log in

A mobile app login screen in an error state. It has the same layout as screen 5, but the input fields for 'EMAIL' (containing 'tunde@mail.com') and 'NAME IN THE GAME' (containing 'Tunji') are highlighted with red borders. Below the fields, a red error message box contains the text 'We could not find that email and name together.' The yellow 'Log in' button and the 'New here? Sign up' link remain at the bottom.

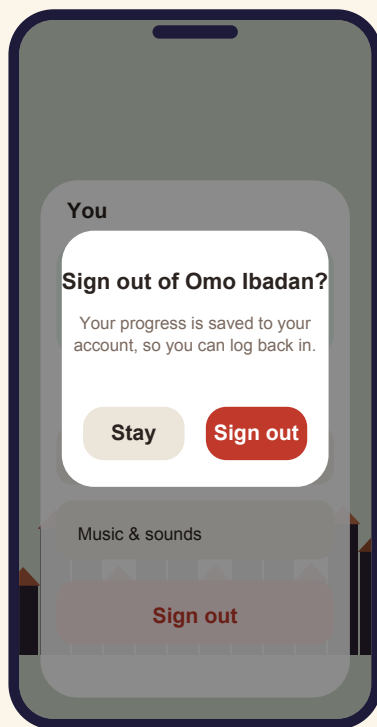

6. Log in: error state

Log in. Email and the name used at sign-up. On success the player's avatar and saved progress come back from the cloud and they walk into the city. The error state is gentle and specific: We could not find that email and name together. After six wrong tries from the same place the screen asks the player to wait a few minutes.

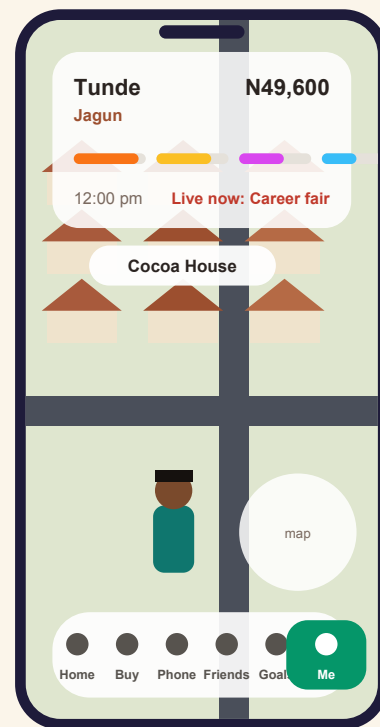

Enhancements recommended

Replace the name with a six-digit code sent to the email (no password to remember, and no one can log in as someone else just by knowing their name). Add Remember this device. Show a spinner and keep the button disabled while checking. Add Use a different email and a resend timer.

6.4 Sign out

7. Sign out

8. In the city

Sign out. At the bottom of the Me sheet, in a soft red. A confirmation asks first: Sign out of Omo Ibadan? Your progress is saved to your account. Confirming uploads the latest progress, forgets this device, and returns to the Welcome screen with the intro song waiting.

The city. Once inside, the interface is deliberately light: one compact profile card (name, title, money, four need meters, time, current event) at the top, a bottom bar with Home, Buy, Phone, Friends, Goals and Me, and the minimap. Everything else is tucked into those sheets, and a small eye button hides all of it for a clean view.

Finding your way. The first time a player enters the city a five-card tour explains moving around, tapping places, the bottom bar, the four need meters and what to do when lost. A ? button at the top right (and How to play in Me) reopens the full guide at any time: eleven short topics plus keyboard shortcuts.

Enhancements recommended

Offer Sign out on all devices. Show a short Saved confirmation before the Welcome screen returns. Add an Account section to the Me sheet with the signed-in email, Change avatar and Delete my account and data (important for privacy).

6.5 Rules and copy

Screen	Field or action	Rule	Message
Sign up	Name	2 to 16 characters, no angle brackets	Pick a name between 2 and 16 letters.
Sign up	Email	Valid address, unique, up to 80 characters	That email is already registered. Use a different one.

Screen	Field or action	Rule	Message
Sign up	Offline	Play continues locally, account syncs later	You're offline: we'll save your account when you reconnect.
Log in	Email + name	Both must match an account	We could not find that email and name together.
Log in	Too many tries	Six failures, ten-minute wait	Too many tries. Wait a few minutes.
Sign out	Confirm	Saves progress first	Sign out of Omo Ibadan? Your progress is saved to your account.

07

Sound, music and rights

The city should sound like Ibadan, and the music belongs to the people who made it.

The game has three layers of sound: a procedural afrobeat and highlife groove generated live by the game itself, ambient city sound (traffic, birds, generators) and effects (coins, doors, horns, a talking drum). None of these use recorded music, so there is nothing to license.

The intro song

The game opens with the chorus of Ibadan by Qdot featuring Olamide, an 18-second clip that repeats on the sign-in screens and keeps repeating in the city until the player stops it. The recording is the property of its artists and their label or publisher, and is shown with a visible credit on the Welcome screen and in the city. The full song is kept only on the developer machine; only the short clip ships with the app, at the project owner's direction.

Before launch: get permission

A song being easy to download does not make it free to use, and hosting it privately does not change who owns it. Before the game is promoted publicly, obtain written permission from Qdot and Olamide (and their label or publisher, who may also hold rights in the recording and the composition) and keep it on file. If a rights holder asks, remove public/audio/intro.mp3 and the intro simply stays silent.

The artist platform

Artists can share their own music through Me > Music and sounds. The platform is designed so that the copyright always stays with the artist:

- Rights declaration. To upload, the artist names the copyright owner and ticks a statement confirming they own the recording and composition (or have the owner's written permission) and allow streaming in the game. The statement is stored with the track.
- Review first. A new track is private. It plays for other players only after the game's owner reviews it on the admin page and approves it.
- Credit everywhere. Whenever a track plays, a small bar shows the title, the artist and (c) rights holder, all rights reserved.
- Stream only. The audio is streamed, never offered as a download button.
- Takedown. The uploader can remove a track at any moment, and the owner can remove any track.
- Limits. Up to 12 MB per file, common audio formats only, five uploads per account per day.

Step	Who	What happens
1	Artist	Opens Music and sounds, chooses Share your music, fills in artist, title and copyright owner.

Step	Who	What happens
2	Artist	Ticks the rights declaration, picks the audio file, presses Submit for review.
3	Server	Checks the file really is audio, stores it privately and marks it pending.
4	Game owner	Listens on the admin page, checks the declaration, approves or rejects with a reason.
5	Players	Approved tracks appear under Listen with the artist's credit. The built-in groove quieters while a track plays.
6	Artist	Can remove the track at any time from Your tracks.

08

Under the hood

Technology, security and what to build next.

Omo Ibadan is a web app. The city is real-time 3D in the browser; a small server keeps people together.

Layer	Technology	Role
Front end	Next.js, React, Tailwind, three.js (react-three-fiber), Motion	The 3D city, the interface, animation.
Characters	Skinned 3D avatars with Nigerian outfits, hair and headwear	Walk, dance, sit, eat, ride and fall.
Sound	Web Audio (generated) and streamed artist tracks	Groove, ambience, effects, intro and artist music.
Real time	WebSocket server, WebRTC voice	Presence, chat, voice rooms, calls, election, cars.
Data	SQLite with numbered migrations	Players, land and houses, tracks, reports, elections.
API	REST (Node)	Sign up, log in, cloud save, tracks, intro, admin review.
Safety	Rate limits, size limits, input clean-up, signed tokens	Basic protection from abuse.

Honest security status

- Accounts today use email and name. There is no password and the email is not yet verified, so anyone who knew both could log in as that player. This is acceptable for a private test, not for a public launch.
- Money, needs and purchases are still calculated in the browser. A determined cheater could change their own numbers. The server stores a clamped copy but does not yet run the economy.
- Voice uses peer-to-peer WebRTC with public STUN. Players behind strict networks will need a TURN relay.

Recommended next steps

Priority	Work	Why
1	One-time email code to sign up and log in	Proves the email is yours; removes the name-guessing weakness.
2	Server-authoritative economy	Jobs, rent, purchases and tickets run on the server so numbers cannot be faked.
3	Permissions for the intro song and any artist content	Legal clearance before a public release.

Priority	Work	Why
4	Account page: change avatar, delete account	Privacy and control for players.
5	TURN server for voice	Reliable calls on every network.
6	Moderation tools and a larger Yoruba and Pidgin word list	A friendly city for everyone.
7	More of Ibadan: Oja'ba, Oke-Ado, Challenge nightlife, Moniya, Apata	The more places, the more it feels like home.

In one sentence

Omo Ibadan is a loving, funny, noisy, rust-roofed portrait of a city, built so that people from Ibadan feel seen and everyone else wants to visit.